BROCKWAY CENTRE.

General Rutherford, state commander of the Grand Army in Michigan, was hugged and kissed by a veteran at the St. Lou's encampment in a manner that astonished the crowd. The homage was explained by his ardent admirer with the following story: "Over twenty years ago, when my captain was killed, this was the man who rescued the body and brought it back to our lines after two companies had been sent to bring it and had been repulsed. It is an act I'll love him for as long as I live," and he again grasped the General's hand and s rode off with him, while the crowd, whi h a moment before was looking on laughing, signified its approval by cheers. The event alluded to occurred in Feb 1865, on the Jerusalem Plank road, near Richmond, when Gen. Rutherf rd was commander of the 189th New York. The officer killed, and whose body Gen. Rutherford with a skirmish line of fourteen men rescued was Captain

In the annual report of Mrs. Lenora Barry, general investigator of the Knights of Labor, she dwelt at great length upon and cited many illustrations in proof of the almost brutal treatment of female employes in the east and offered several recommendations looking to the appointment of educa. tors for the purpose of teaching the true principles of the order, and that such instructors be required to pass an examination as to their qualifications for the position by the general master workman; that organizers put forth greater efforts to inculcate the true principles of the order in the minds of the number of newly organized assembles, that productive and distributive co-operative enterprises be formed, particularly in the manufacture of clothing, as in this branch of industry women suffer most from poor wages

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., has a pickle factory that is supplied with cucumbers from the lands adjoining the city. This season the supply has reached 39,000,000 cucumbersthose engaging in their production furnishing from 200,000 to 1,000,000 each. An acre will produce 100,000, and they sell in Fredericksburg at 8 cents per 1,0 0. The object is to get them an inch or an inch and a half long and this requires active picking, before they increase this size. A boy will pick 3,000 per day. Picking them thus early increases the productiveness of the vine, and while the season lasts others are appearing in pla e of those taken from the vine.

A writer in the London Fair Trade gives it as the result of a very careful inquiry that 90,000 Americans have summered in England, and that the a few days ago. average expenditure of each has been $1,000. The figures are probably well within bounds; those relating to expenditure certainly are so. Here, then, is the sum of $90,000,000 spent in summer travel in some particular direction. What the grand total of summer expenditures of Americans in Paris, Rome, the Orient, the mountains of the Pacific and Atlantic slopes, and the various watering-places of their own country may be is not ascertainable, but $200,000,000 is not a wild guess

The Cornell students must be first-rate acrobats and tumblers at the end of their course.

Scribner's Magazine will signalize the completion of its first year by the publication of a superb Christmas number-Its contents will be ch'efly poetry and fiction, and literature appropriate to the season The number of illustra tions will be greatly increased, and wil represent the best and most original work of American artists and engravers. The cover is to be enriched by a special border, printed in gold, but notwithstanding the fact that the preparation of this number has necessitated of course, a greatly increased cost, the price will remain as usual, 25 cents,

A Deadly Blot. A riot occurred in Pievna during an election the other day. Twenty-five persons were killed and 30 seriously wounded. MRS. GARFIELD ABROAD.

Various Conjectures as to Why She's

It is rumored that the real cause of the postponement of Miss Mollie Garfield's marriage is that the young lady does not intend to marry J. Stanley Brown at all. An intimate friend of the late General Garfield, and, since his death, of Mrs. Garfield and family, says with reference to the matter: "There is probably no further use in attempting to conceal the true reason for the sudden departure of Mrs. Garfield and daughter Mollie for Europe. The rumors of Mrs. Garfield's marriage engagement are absurd. She accompanied Gen. Garfield to Europe at one time when he was ill and was herself violently sick during the entire trip over: uently it can readily be seen that it would take something more important than the iliness of her neice, May of Cleveland, as has been stated in the papers, to cause her to take the trip at this time. The real reason is a rupture which has occurred between Miss Mollie and J. Stanley Brown, the young man who expected to become her husband this month. Mr. Brown was General Garfield's private secretary. He wears a ruffled shirt front and makes a rather presentable appearance, but appears to have no particular pros pects and not a great deal of money. Miss Mollie herself recently denied to a friend that she was ever engaged to Mr. Brown. At any rate, it is safe to say that the wedding is entirely off. As the wedding has long been looked forward to as a certainty by friends of the family, the trip was made to escape the embarrassment of the situa-

HER LABORS ENDED. The Author of John Halifax, Gentleman

Dead. Mrs. Craik (Dinah Maria Mulock) the uthoress, is dead.
Mrs. Craik—Dinah Maria Mulock—was born in Stoke-upon-Trent, Staffordshire, Eng., in 1826, and is the daughter of an Episcopal clergyman. Miss Mulock, or as she liked to sign herself, "the author of John Halifax, Gentleman" "has been a popular novelist since 1857, when she published the novel just mentioned. Her first novel, "The Oglivies," published in 1849, met with moderate favor, though it has been widely read since the author became famous. "John Halifax. Gentle-man," is a tale of English manufacturing life, quietly told, and depicting the struggles and joys of the middle class life England. It was in this field that she made her success, and each of the many volumes from her pen depicted some phase of pure love battling with and triumphing over the trials of the every-day life of men and women. A keen sympathy and a pure purpose have marked all her works. Her literary style is free from affectacton and sentimentality. Since 1864 she has enjoyed a literary pension of $300 a year. In 1865 she married G. L. Craik. In this country her stories appeared regularly in Harper's Monthly, and have been published in book form by the Harpers.

Sentiments of Nebraska Democrats. The Nebraska Democratic state con-vention nominated Thomas O'Day of Antelope county, for justice of the supreme court, and Dr. Slicker of Hitchcock county, and Fred L. Harris for regents of state university. The platform indorses Cleveland's administration and reaffirms the principles of the national platform of 1884. It recommends proper regulation of railroads, reduction of the revenue to what is only necessary, more favorable legislation for laboring classes, the rigid enforcement of the high license law, and opposition to prohibition and all sumptu ary laws. Sympathy is extended to Parnell and Gladstone and the cause of Ireland. The national democratic comas the place for holding the next national democratic convention.

Judge Thomas Manning, minister to Mexico, died in New York on the 11th inst, of impaction of the intestines. Judge Manning was 58 years old. He has served in congress, and was for several terms on the bench in Louisiana, which osition he held at the time of his appointment to the Mexican mission. His successor will undoubtedly be Thomas B. Connery, formerly manager of the New York Herald, and now secretary of the legation in the City of Mexico. Mr. Connery took his place only on the promise that he should be promoted if the mis sion should become vacant.

A Rich Company. The capital of the Pullman Palace Car company, already at the enormous total of $15,920,000, has been increased twentyfive per cent, making the aggregate amount nearly $20,000,000. The number of persons employed by the company is operating and manufacturing depart ments is 9,066, and the wages paid during the year were $5,044,633. The earning from the operations of cars were $5,621, 017 and from manufacturing, rentals, patents, dividends, interest, etc., $820,114. The number of passengers carried during the year was 3,085,242.

No Sympathy With Anarchists. At one of the sessions of the knights of labor at Minneapolis, Minn., James E. Quinn, the "kicker" and Home Club man, offered resolutions sympathizing with the condemned anarchists, and pledging the assembly to aid in securing a commutation of the sentence. There was a scene of wild excitement. Mr. Powderly declared the resolution out of order. An appeal from the decision was taken, and lost by 151 to 52. Mr. Powderly went on the floor and made a strong speech against the resolutions.

The Company Censured. The coroner places the blame of the Koutz disaster primarily on the train dispatcher and management for permitting a fast freight to run so close on a passenger train whose engine was disabled; on the eagineer of the freight; and also on the management, train dispatcher and conductor of the express, for the latter's no knowing, or the management not inform ing him, that the fast freight was only from two to three minutes in his rear

THE FOUR-FOOTED GUIDE.

A Remarkable Dog Which Conducts Strangers Through Watkins Glen. The guest at the Jefferson house in

Watkins will be greeted on his arrival

by a large, handsome, well-fed dog with a tony name, says The Elmira (N. Y.) Advertsier. This is Gibson, famed far and near as the only living gu de to Watkins glen. Gibson is a remarkable animal, with more sagacity even than the dog which the girl with the laughing eyes possessed in Glenville Murray's tale. For the past eight years Gibson has made daily trips to the glen, and has been petted and caressed by thousands of women and children, for Gibson is a very gallant dog, and a great admirer of the ladies, whom he is particularly proud to pilot through the glen, watch ug after their safety with great care. The dog is an aristocratic fellow, too, and only likes well-dressed people. He will growl at the approach of a man in poor clothes, and when escorting ladies he has been known to spring on a workman who passed, so zealous was he in his protection of the fair tour st; but ord narily Gibson is one of the best-natured dogs in the world, and will allow ladies and children to pet h m all day long, accepting their attentions with quiet dignity. He never plays with the other dogs about the street, but holds himself apart from all canine companionship. A curious trait is that, although ever ready to guide a guest of the Jefferson house to the glen and through it, he will never go with a resident of the village. He seems to know the tourists and pleasure seekers by instinct, and will come up to them and draw their attention by a rub of the nose or a touch of the paw. He seems to know that the commercial travler does not want to visit the glen, and he makes no attempt to cultivate his acquaintance. If a visitor says to the dog: "Gibson, I want to go to the glen." Gibson is at once by his side, and even his master can not call him away when once his tourist has been placed under his gu dance. He will lead the way to the entrance of the glen as sedately as though he knew the responsibility of his duty, and will conduct him through unerringly, going a few steps in advance and stopping now and then as if to call attention to the beauties of the scenery. He will never desert anyone whom he sets out to escort and if a visitor from the Jefferson house decides to take a meal in the glen Gibson will wait until he is ready to return. He is more fond of ice-cream than a school-girl, and giving him some of this delicacy is the surest way to win his favor. When he rides he always sits upright on the seat of the carriage by the side of the person in whose compnay he has started out. In going through the glen if a tourist gets on the wrong path Gibson will at once drop a few steps behind, and nothing can induce him to go ahead again until the way has been retraced and the right path regained, when he will bound aheadwith every manifestation of pleasure. It is no unusal thing for him to

The bull got his horns into the 'gator's sides and, I fting his huge carcass, tossed h m high and dry on the ground and following up with a deep rushed again upon its foe. The alliga-tor met him with a terrible blow of its tail, knocking off one born and bringing the bull to his knees. The other horn got it under a fore leg of the 'gator and the 'gator getting a front foot of the bull in its mouth they became locked and rolled and tumbled feartully. They got into the water again, where, after a brief struggle, both expired. The entrails of the gator were protruding in several places, while the bull was nearly stripped of hide and flesh.—Sumter (Ga.) Republica:.
